WHAT OUR EDUCATIONAL THERAPISTS ARE DOING?

Assessing and remediating those with Math related difficulties – Our cases can be complex. It could mean providing intervention for students who have not responded to traditional tutoring...

Math Workings

Deep Diving into Why a Student is weak at Math – it often involves more than just re-teaching. Looking into the process of how a child derive at an answer is part of our work.

Learning-related Issues such as Dyslexia, Dyscalculia, and ADHD, often mean a risk of the psychological toll on the child.

Our Educational Therapist remediates not just conceptual understanding of math and language, but will carefully consider other factors (i.e. self-esteem issues, task avoidance, anger management, visual-spatial impact) to increase educational success. Our Educational Therapists may work alongside tutors or learning support to increase the efficiency of our remediation. They could be working on executive functions to bring about important changes in academic results.

Keeping a teenager motivated can be a multi-factorial challenge, and our Educational Therapist can help.

WHAT OUR DEVELOPMENTAL THERAPISTS ARE DOING?

Our Developmental Therapists have backgrounds in pediatric occupational therapy, special education, and speech therapy, and are trained to take a holistic approach to developmental-related issues.

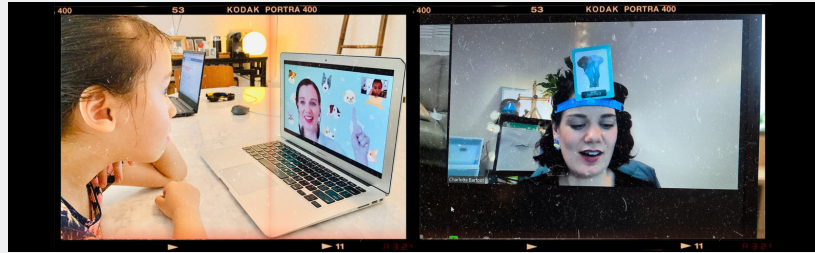

If engagement, co-regulation, and attention are affected, our Developmental Therapist plays an important role. Visual-spatial weaknesses often have serious repercussions on learning. Find out how our Developmental Therapists can help.

Our Developmental Therapists understand the gaps in learning brought about by executive function challenges to support our students.

Our capability in assessing and remediating over ZOOM has been enhanced over the recent years. We have had successful arrangements both locally and overseas in remediating both young children and young adults.
